GUY COLBY COMING TO ORLAND BARN DANCE NOVEMBER 5

Because of the fine evening of genuine fun and frolic enjoyed by over 350 good people of our community at the Guy Colby Barn dance held a few weeks ago as part of the Orland Community Committee's program to raise funds for the establishment of the School Home Economics unit, there has been such a popular demand for another such an evening that the committee has arranged for a repeat performance.

This will be held Friday evening, November 5 in the school gym. Guy Colby will again be Master of Ceremonies and from 8 pm to 9 pm will give personal instruction to all those wishing to learn the various calls, movements and formations of the square dance. The dancing proper will begin at 9 p. m. and last until 12:30 a. m. Between the various old time dances, those addicted to jive will have the opportunity to display their talents. Refreshments will be served. Keep the evening of November 5 open for an evening of keen enjoyment. You will assist in the maintenance of the school Home Economics unit which when functioning, as it is planned to function, will be a great civic asset.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS WILL BE DELAYED SAYS U. S. POST OFFICE

The US Post Office Department has announced that there can be no assurance, in view of the unavoidable handicaps of war, that gifts and cards mailed in the weeks immediately preceding Christmas will be delivered on time. Such matter must not impede the movement of war materials and personnel and military mail.

Transportation facilities are heavily burdened. The number of railway cars and airplanes available for handling Christmas mail is far below that of former years. Facilities simply are not available to transport and deliver in the last 3 weeks before Christmas, the tremendous quantities of mail that we heretofore moved in that period.

More than 30 thousand postal employees have gone into the armed forces. They have been largely replaced with less experienced personnel. Heretofore experienced help was worked long hours at high speed in order to accomplish the delivery of the great volume of Christmas mail. This year inexperienced help will not be able to do the job in the last 3 weeks before Christmas.

Therefore the Post Office Department gives mailers this warning:

The War has dislocated the Christmas mailing season. This year, November is the time for mailing Christmas gifts and cards. Gifts should be marked, "Do not open until Christmas."

Standard Oil Truck Driver Badly Hurt

Roy Herr, 36, of 110 Margaret St., Joliet, driver of a Standard Oil truck while driving on 159th St., was critically injured Monday morning, when he lost control of the truck near the Fred Arnold farm north of Tinley Park. The truck ran off the pavement into a ditch and crashed into a tree. He was removed to the Oak Forest Infirmary hospital.

Dr. Eugene Chesrow of the Infirmary hospital said that Herr's condition is critical as he suffered a basal skull fracture and numerous internal injuries including chest wounds.

According to Lt. Frank Maurino of the Blue Island state police headquarters, Herr's truck plunged into a ravine beside the road and it is believed Herr was pinned under the wreckage for more than an hour before he was found.

ANN RUTLEDGE SCHOOL GOES OVER THE TOP

In September the children of Ann Rutledge School of Lincoln Estates organized a Junior Red Cross with the following officers:

Myrtle Anderson, 8th grade, Pres. Tommy Taylor, 5th grade, vice president, Wilma Pollard, 7th grade Secretary, and Rosamaria Schafer, 6th grade Treasurer.

Their first project was the filling of Christmas boxes to be sent over seas to children less fortunate than they. Each child agreed to fill one box.

The boxes were secured from the Will County Chapter of the Junior Red Cross. Every child took one home. By the middle of October the filled boxes began to be brought back to school. They were packed with an amazing variety of gifts.

Every box contained soap, tooth powder, tooth paste, and wash cloths which are so much needed and so hard to get in the war ridden countries. The upper half of each box was filled with toys and topped with a Santa Claus jumping jack.

One little boy said, "I hope the boy that gets my box takes his jumping jack to the air raid shelter with him, for it would surely make the people laugh."

Since everyone filled his box with gifts he himself would like, there were boxes for all ages of children, even a six month's old baby. No, there is no nursery at Ann Rutledge; but one of its patrons, Mrs. Hauser, asked for and filled a box for her infant son Albert.

Friday morning, October 22, the eighth grade, Myrtle Anderson, Mary Elphick, Nancy King, Ethel Pollard, Audrey Chae and David Tyler were given a half holiday to take these boxes to Joliet and turn them into the County chapter.

Thirty six boxes made a good sized package for each one.

While at the Red Cross work rooms they were permitted to help with the work of the day. Myrtle operated a mimeograph, Ethel, Mary and Audrey addressed post cards to blood donors, for appointments, and David helped collect and deliver a screen, film and projector to the Silver Cross hospital.

So much work gave all five of them a good appetite for the luncheon they had at Hopkins Drug Store. By 1:30 they were back in school.

Young Crime Wave Sweeps New Lenox

A veritable crime wave has been sweeping the New Lenox territory the past few weeks. Quite a few homes have been burglarized, as well as private garages and quite a number of finger prints have been left.

Last week Miss Jane Gougar reported the theft of a bicycle. Walter Gougar, Sr., has been raising Beagle hounds and some one poisoned them, causing the death of several champion hounds and the serious illness of four puppies.

Strange men have stopped girls on the streets at night asking for certain directions and then asking the girls to go with them to show them the right place, but so far the girls have stirred shy of getting in the strangers cars.

One night last week while a young girl was walking by a vacant lot in the Brookwood subdivision, a man wearing a leather jacket jumped up a poked a gun in her back and cautioning her not to make an outcry. He grabbed her and attempted to drag her to a lot, but she broke his hold and managed to run away.

Despite all of these petty criminal acts, no reports have been made to the sheriff's office, it is understood.

MOKENA TO BE FIRST IN WILL COUNTY TO HAVE GRADE A MILK

The grade A pasteurized milk ordinance, recommended by the United States Public Health Service, was passed by the village board of Trustees of Mokena at a meeting held there, October 19. "This is definitely a move toward better health for the citizens of the community," said Dr. Cecil A. Z. Sharp, County Health Officer in making the announcement.

"The people of Mokena are entitled to a clean, safe milk supply," said Mayor Harry F. Mall. "Passage of the ordinance means that not later than twelve months from date, residents of Mokena will be receiving a Grade A pasteurized milk which will be equivalent to the best milk produced in the United States. We expect to be the first community in Will County to have a Grade A milk which is both produced and pasteurized in the county."

R. H. Baron, County Milk Sanitarian, commended both the Mayor and the Board of Trustees for their foresight in the protection of the health of the people in their community.

"Enforcement of the ordinance," he said, will mean both a drop in the infant mortality rate and a reduction in the prevalence of milk-borne diseases.

WIFE RUSHES VICTIM TO B. I. HOSPITAL

John Bettenhausen, aged 41 years well known farmer of the Mokena, Tinley territory, was critically hurt last Friday morning when he was gored by a vicious bull in his own barn yard.

Mr. and Mrs. Bettenhausen had been milking cows about six o'clock in the morning and Mr. Bettenhausen went into the barn yard to drive another cow into the barn, when he was attacked by the bull. He was knocked down by the infuriated animal and stomped on. He managed to roll underneath a fence out of the reach of the vicious animal, but not before he had sustained very serious injuries.

His wife called to him when he did not return to the barn, but got no answer. She called again and heard a faint cry saying, "The bull got me". She rushed to where her husband lay and seeing he was very badly injured, she managed to get him into the family car and rushed him to the St. Francis hospital in Blue Island. Examination showed ribs had been broken and very bad internal injuries also were revealed. Mr. Bettenhausen has been between life and death since.

V. F. W.

The return of Congress from its summer vacation marked the launching of a renewed effort on the part of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States to obtain enactment of several veteran welfare measures it is sponsoring in the national legislative body according to Omar B. Ketchum, C. F. W. National Legislative Representative.

In a recent bulletin received here by Commander Glenn Peterson, V. F. W. Post No. 725, Ketchum urged local members of the organization to write their respective Senators and Congressmen in support of H. R. 923, the VFW bill providing a six months' continuation of pay for all members of the Armed Forces at the termination of the present war. This proposal, introduced in Congress by Representative James E. Van Zandt, of Pennsylvania, a past commander-in-chief of the VFW, is now pending in the Committee on Military Affairs, Ketchum explained.

Other legislative proposals which will receive the concentrated efforts of the VFW legislative representative and the support of its entire membership include H. R. 986, which would change the definition of "misconduct" only for the purpose of qualifying for compensation, and H. R. 1121, which would increase by 15 percent, the pension and statutory awards payable to all beneficiaries of the Veterans' Administration, in line with increased living costs.

AXIS MORALE IS CRACKING

Military reports that have leaked out of Germany in the past two or three weeks indicate quite definitely that Nazi morale is cracking. These reports, through channels which cannot be revealed, were quite definite even before Propaganda Minister Goebbels delivered his give-away speech warning that saboteurs on the home front would be beheaded.

Reports also are definite that the German army no longer has the reserves, no longer has the fighting backbone for a long war. Resentment against Hitler boils beneath the surface in the German army. German soldiers will keep on fighting, and are toughly trained, desperately hitting adversaries. But their heart isn't in it anymore.

All these factors, plus powerful wallop by the Allies, have created an atmosphere in which anything might happen. It is an atmosphere not unlike that which existed in the autumn of 1918. There are those in high places who think the war in Europe might be over anytime this winter, depending entirely on Nazi morale.

But in Asia the war is moving at a snail's pace. In Burma, though the rains are already over, nothing has happened. Many observers think that nothing will happen until late this winter, and that the real drive through Burma toward South China will be reserved for a year from now—the fall of 1944.

WILL ROGERS IN LONDON

Congressman Will Rogers of California, son of the cowboy humorist, came back from London singing the praises of American-British co-operation in England.

American troops, which he described as the new "Army of Occupation," live off the fat of the land and are treated royally by the British. There is nothing too good for them. Only trouble is they occasionally take a girl away from a British Tommy.

Will's father was a frequent visitor in London, and everyone remembered him. So it was like old home week for the young congressman from California.

BRITISH IDLE OIL

Maine's eagle-eyed Senator Brewster met Gen. B. B. Somervell, chief of the army's service forces on the Pacific island of Fiji, immediately tackled him on the dynamite-laden, all-important question of why the U.S.A. was supplying nearly 70 per cent of all Allied oil, though we have only 25 per cent of the world's oil reserves.

"Right around the Persian Gulf," reminded Senator Brewster, "the British have oil refineries and limitless quantities of oil. Why don't we get more oil out of the Near East instead of hauling it all the way from Texas?"

"We are rushing refining equipment to Arabia as quickly as we can," replied General Somervell.

"Yes," countered the senator from Maine, "but why use precious shipping space carting refining equipment half way around the world when the British already have a refinery at the Gulf of Persia. The manager of the Anglo-Persian oil company told us that his refinery could produce 60 per cent more oil. Why not put it to work instead of exhausting our own oil reserves?"

"Furthermore," Brewster continued, "the crude oil from Persian wells is so good that it can be pumped right into ships as bunker oil without refining. If we don't get busy and use it, we'll wake up after the war to find the United States with no oil left, and dependent on the British Empire."

CABOOSE SLEEPERS

Cornded Senator Ed Johnson of Colorado got his start as a railroad telegrapher, still proudly carries a union card. So he was well qualified to preside over the War Mobilization committee when A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, testified on manpower and other railroad problems.

Whitney objected to the policy of some railroads in refusing to let train crews sleep in idle cabooses. Trainmen away from home frequently can't get hotel accommodations, but railroad officials argue that it is unsanitary and also dangerous for them to sleep in "cabs," which sometimes have to be switched.

"When I was a working trainman, we always lived in our cabooses," Whitney said, "not because rooms were not available at hotels, but because it was more convenient."

"Many's the time I have slept in cabooses myself," reminisced Johnson.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

American doughboys in Iran have found a good way to dodge U. S. military police and get out of camp at night. They take advantage of the Mohammedan custom of veiling their women, and slip on a full-length, cover-all veil which Iranian women wear from head to toe. Military police have been instructed to protect Iranian women and prevent all flirting, so they don't dare stop a veiled figure to ask her (or him) to lower the veil, and see whether an American doughboy is behind it.

Four Ways to Cross a Jungle Stream

United States troops in Australia learn to cross jungle streams in more ways than one. Four methods are demonstrated in this picture: 1. Via a raft made of timber found on the spot; 2. Via amphibious jeep; 3. Via a rope ladder suspended across the water; 4. Via a "flying fox," a form of breeches buoy.

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON ABSTINENCE

(International Temperance Sunday)

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 10:1, 2, 8-11; Proverbs 31:4, 5; Luke 1:13-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink.—Judges 13:4.

Total abstinence from all alcoholic liquors is the only sensible and effective policy for Christian people. Some, who want to use alcohol themselves, like to stress the Bible's teaching of temperance. They point to the use of wine on the part of people in biblical times, although they fail to note that more often than not it was non-alcoholic. (See "The Bible and Wine," published by Loizeaux Brothers.)

Another thing they ignore is that we live in a different day with a mechanized society, when alcoholic beverages are offered through high pressure advertising and in highly distilled and potent form.

What we are most interested in is what the Bible teaches about the matter. We note that—

Abstinence is Necessary
I. For Spiritual Obedience (Lev. 10:1-2, 8-11).

In the religious life of a nation one expects the leaders to set the example for the people to follow. Two things we may rightly demand of those who serve the nation in its religious life: (1) a vision of God and obedience to that vision in life and service, and (2) the exercise of sound, God-guided judgment in the affairs of the people.

But note what happens when the prophet and the priest turn to wine and strong drink. They err in vision (Isa. 28:7). That is, they have no clear concepts of divine truth, and lead the people into error. Further, we see that "they stumble in judgment."

To every true servant of God comes repeatedly the opportunity and the need of rendering judgment, that is, of advising and counseling those to whom he ministers. If his mind is befuddled by the use of alcohol (or, for that matter, by any other kind of worldly indulgence) he will "stumble," and cause his people to stumble.

A sad incident is related in Leviticus 10:1, 2, of the sons of Aaron.

We are not told directly that they were intoxicated, but it is implied in the fact that there is an immediate injunction against the use of wine by the priests (Lev. 10:8-11).

II. For National Order (Prov. 31:4, 5).

It is a notorious fact that the liquor interests strongly influence the political life of a nation. (See "The Wrecking of the 18th Amendment," by Ernest Gordon.)

While political leaders may make sanctimonious protestation that government agencies are not influenced by the liquor interests, it is common knowledge even to those who are slightly informed that the two are closely associated.

The result of that unholy alliance is rightly described in Proverbs 31:5—"They . . . forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted." Much of the sad disorder in the body politic is traceable directly to the door of the makers and sellers of alcoholic beverages.

It is a depressing and disturbing thing when the leaders of a nation are known to lean on alcoholic stimulants—the broken reed on which man can only be pierced. The destructive influence of their example can be imagined.

III. For Personal Usefulness (Luke 11:13-16).

John was to be born into a life of such blessed usefulness to God and man that he was to be a "joy and gladness" to his parents, "great in the sight of the Lord," and instrumental in turning "many of the children of Israel . . . to the Lord."

Such a life is worthy of emulation on the part of every young man and woman. What is the secret of it? Undoubtedly, fine Christian parentage had much to do with it.

Other elements also entered in, such as rearing and training, but of great importance was the fact (v. 15) that he was not to be driven by the false stimulants of this world, but by the infilling of the Holy Spirit of God. No "wine nor strong drink," but being "filled with the Holy Ghost"—there, young people, is the secret of a happy and useful life.

Note that John was to be "great in the sight of the Lord" (v. 15)—nothing finer or more distinctive could be said about a man. That greatness simply could not exist along with indulgence in "wine nor strong drink." Being filled with the Spirit precludes the use of intoxicants.

Let us bear that in mind when we are tempted to be led astray by the smooth arguments of those who talk "temperance" as a ground for indulgence. Our boys and girls—yes, our men and women—need a constant warning against the evils of alcoholic liquor. (See Alcohol, a Deceiver, Depraver and Destroyer, published by Moody Press, Chicago.)

Painted Coffee Table With a Top of Glass

IT ALL started with a bright idea for making a painted coffee table out of odds and ends of lumber. The sketch gives dimensions and shows the simple construction used to make the frame reinforced by useful shelves at the ends. So far the table was substantial but crude and that is where the lady with the needle came in.

The table was to be painted cream color and then waxed. She bought a yard of slightly darker tan saten and applied a design of blue and red morning glories with green leaves on it. This was placed over the top of the table and tacked around the edge. A piece of glass was cut to fit and the finishing boards were then screwed around the sides. Any interesting fabric could be used under the glass of the table top, or bright flower prints or a map would give a good effect.

NOTE—Mrs. Spears has prepared a sheet—17 by 22 inches—giving complete dimensions and detailed directions for cutting and assembling this table; also list of exact amounts of material needed. The inexperienced person can follow these directions with the assurance of perfect results. Send 15 cents for Pattern No. 254 to:

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

In the 45 years between 1889 and 1934, the output of rubber produced by the Far East plantations jumped from half a ton to 98 per cent of the world's supply—1934 shipments were 1,000,000 tons. The first official record, that for 1899, shows that four tons of rubber were produced from 4000 acres under cultivation.

The greatest enemies to the long life of natural rubber are sunlight, heat, oils, greases and solvents. The ultra-violet rays of the sun penetrate the surface of rubber, causing it to oxidize; heat causes deterioration, and oils develop swelling and softening, making the rubber more susceptible to damage.

Sunflower Quilt Is Fascinating to Make

THE "Sunflower" is one of the easiest of the quilt designs to make—the diamond-shaped pieces are easy to cut and a block works up quickly. Use brown-flecked percales, tiny patterned cream and yellow calicoes, grass-green and leaf-green cottons. Do the center in vivid yellow. Quilt has 12 pieced blocks, each 14 inches square—12 plain blocks.

To obtain cutting patterns for the Sunflower Quilt (Pattern No. 5161) complete piecing and finishing directions, amounts of all materials specified, send 16 cents in coins, your name and address and the pattern number.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

Elsa Chatfield, Hollywood artist, is cut off from the will of her Aunt Kitty Chatfield, who died from an overdose of morphine. Barry, an amateur detective, and Huntoon Rogers, a professional sleuth, go down to Mazatlan, Mexico, on a yacht cruise with Margaret and Dwight Nichols. Rogers is not quite satisfied that Aunt Kitty died by her own hand. When they arrive at Mazatlan they find that Elsa, James Chesebro, a mine owner, and George Rumble, Elsa's agent, have preceded them by plane. They dine at the ranch of Sam Chatfield, Elsa's father. Rogers asks Chatfield if he was in California at the time his sister, Kitty, died. The question upsets Sam Chatfield considerably.

CHAPTER V

"So, you see, when Kitty was found dead early next morning I was frightened—for Berta. What if the police asked questions? What if they heard through the servants that we had stayed the night there? That Berta had been very angry with Kitty? Could I have my beloved Berta the target of police questioning? You see?"

"Very clearly," said Rogers. "In order to set your mind at rest, Mr. Chatfield—if you are still troubled—I've read the police files dealing with your sister's death. There is no mention of your presence in the house that night. Or even in town at the hotel. How did you manage it?"

"Elsa managed it. She was there, of course. I never asked her how she did it. I'm relieved to know that Berta and I have no official connection with what happened that night. We were happy to get safely home to Mazatlan, and we have not ventured back to California, except for our brief visit some weeks ago."

"Were you aware that Katherine Chatfield was a morphine addict?" he inquired of our host.

"Not until after she died. Moreover, I don't think that Elsa knew it, either, living as she was in the same house with her, until after Kitty's death."

"Am I being too personal, Mr. Chatfield?"

"Not at all, Mr. Rogers. I am only too glad to tell you what I know."

"Yes."

"Did you detect any unusual odor in the room?"

"No. The room was closed—had been closed all night, I suppose. But I'm a poor person to be asked that question; my sense of smell is not acute."

"No odor of chloroform, Mr. Chatfield?"

"No, I don't recall it."

He poured from the bottle and reached for the siphon, his arm halting midway in its reach. "But why this talk of murder?" he asked. "Why not let it rest as it undoubtedly was—as a suicide?"

"The district attorney has never been satisfied with the investigation that was made at the time, Mr. Chatfield," I remarked. "He's a close friend of mine; he's never been willing to call it suicide."

"But have you anything to go on which indicated that it wasn't?"

"I haven't," I admitted.

Sam Chatfield's gray eyes in his deeply tanned face turned to Rogers inquiringly.

"There is an investigator on the Pasadena police force with an extraordinary sense of smell. He says there was an odor of chloroform in the room that morning."

"Well?" Sam Chatfield sat forward in his chair.

"Why chloroform if it was suicide? If your sister was a morphine addict, and had a source of supply, as she must have had, why chloroform when she knew that an overdose of morphine was all she required?"

"And that fact—I'm not disputing the evidence of the man's nose—has swayed you to the opinion that my sister was murdered?"

"Yes."

"Do you have any more questions, Mr. Rogers?" inquired Sam Chatfield.

"There's one more thing," Rogers began slowly. "I hesitate to bring it up, for it must touch very closely upon your sensibilities. And yet it is vital."

"Yes?" Sam Chatfield's voice was clipped, unfriendly almost.

"There was a child some five years or so ago. And, of course, gossip. Ugly gossip. The truth never came out, even among close friends of your family."

Sam Chatfield's eyes suddenly were blazing with anger.

"I've nothing to say, Mr. Rogers, about that child. It's dead. The whole incident is dead, so far as we Chatfields are concerned."

"I'm sorry," replied Rogers. "I'm very sorry."

We fished that next day. All day long in the launch we plied the blue waters off Mazatlan until well into the afternoon. Margaret, who had started with us, remained in the launch only a couple of hours. Elsa had promised to come out, bringing Berta with her. So we picked them up at the wharf and put the three of them on board the Orizaba and continued fishing from the launch. However, there was no sign of swordfish that day, but a run of albacore in the afternoon provided ample excitement; and in the evening we nursed our sunburn and talked of the fishing yet to be done.

Elsa seemed downcast at the rail that evening as she and I watched the brief, fiery sunset which preceded the dusk. Dwight and Margaret were below; Rogers was in his state-room doctoring a blistered nose, and Berta had been set ashore. Our fishing plans had been changed after dinner. Margaret had decided to invite Berta and Sam, and any of the others who could come aboard, for a day's cruise up the coast.

Margaret in the early evening had sent over into town for the two youthful mariachis, Felipe and Pancho, to come out and play for us, which they obligingly did for a couple of hours or so on the after deck. But Elsa was restless; this was not Reed Barton's playing and singing in the patio by moonlight which had stirred something in her heart; it was merely Mexican music without meaning. She got up and went below before the boys had finished, leaning over to whisper in my ear before she left me:

"Did you ever feel like a barometer, Barry? A change is coming." I slept on her remark and could make nothing of it, and after breakfast as we stood again at the rail

"Of all the dirty, cowardly leeches—"

looking off over the sparkling water of the bay which was emerging from a light fog, I asked:

"Were you being prophetic last night, Elsa? About a change coming?"

"Barry, you're too profound for me this morning. Oh, look! The launch is coming from shore."

Nosing through drifting wisps of fog was the sharp prow of the launch. Elsa brightened amazingly, her face was keenly alert as she endeavored to identify its passengers. Interest after a moment suddenly went out of her and she turned away. I saw Sam Chatfield in the launch, and Berta; and side by side the fat figure of Chesebro and Rumble, the latter dressed in his incredible coat and huge black sombrero, as congenial as a pair of disgruntled clams.

Elsa kissed her father and hugged Berta's small round person to herself ecstatically, and stretched a hand out to Chesebro in greeting.

"Didn't you bring Reed Barton with you, Jimmy?" she asked with a tone of petulance. Chesebro glanced sharply at her.

"Barton hasn't got back from the mine. Probably won't until later on today."

"But we can't go cruising without him."

"Don't forget, Elsa," Chesebro chided her almost as if she were a child, "that Reed Barton is employed; he's got a job to do. Work comes before social diversions."

"You always have such complete and satisfactory explanations, Jimmy," returned Elsa. Chesebro looked closely at her to see what lay behind the remark, and then strode down the deck to greet Dwight and Margaret who were emerging from the companionway.

"Your Mexico always delights me, senora," I said to Berta, as the crowd at the ladder began to break up. George Rumble moved away with Elsa. Huntoon Rogers had come up from below and was talking with Sam Chatfield.

Berta's dark eyes lighted up with pleasure; her white teeth flashed me a smile and she leaned a bare brown arm upon the rail.

"That's because you know Mexico and understand it, Senor Madison."

At that moment down the deck where Elsa and George Rumble were bent heads together over a section of the Sunday paper he had brought on board, there came Elsa's voice so charged with emotion that it penetrated my heart like a knife.

"Oh—George!" she exclaimed.

"What's wrong with that, baby?" returned Rumble matter-of-factly.

He hurriedly folded up the paper, however. Elsa drew away from him. She shrank as if she had been struck a mortal blow, walked dazedly to the companionway and went below. Rumble watched her go, his face a puzzle, then as if dismissing the matter, tucked the paper under his arm and walked nonchalantly aft, leaving us all staring after him, staring, too, at the companionway down which Elsa had disappeared.

Huntoon Rogers had drifted over to my side while this was happening. His nose and cheekbones still were red from the sunburn of the day before, but his mild blue eyes were intent upon the retreating figure of Rumble.

"What happened, Barry?" he inquired.

"I don't know, Hunt. I can't imagine. Something serious, though, to judge from Elsa's reaction."

"Let's go take a look at Rumble's paper."

George Rumble continued retreating along the deck as we walked in his direction, a curious figure in brown slacks, incredible sports coat and the black sombrero. As he continued along the deck, he had the appearance of one endeavoring to walk away from disaster. Just as we were about to catch up with him, the fat figure of Chesebro, popping out of the doorway to the ship's lounge, waylaid him.

Rumble paused, his sombrero tilting back as he looked up at the taller man. A curious expression was on Chesebro's dark face, an expression mingled of suspicions, resentment and malevolence. Without speaking, he held his hand out imperiously for the newspaper. Rumble gave it to him and withdrew a step or two and stood watching Chesebro's fat hands unfold the rogarure section. The main bulk of the paper was tucked under his arm, whence it fell promptly to the deck, the edges of its many sheets to be stirred gently by the morning breeze. Chesebro turned to an inside page of the section, scanning its contents rapidly, while Rumble with gaze set like that of a small boy summoned to answer for his misdeeds, watched Chesebro.

Chesebro of a sudden started; his whole fat figure tensed. A moment later he recovered, angrily folded the section tore it once through the middle and threw it overboard. I followed its downward fluttering, saw it hit the water, and then my eyes traveled farther to a rowboat manned by a native in white cotton pants and straw sombrero. In the boat looking eagerly at us was Reed Barton.

"Well?" said Rumble, licking his dry lips. "What do you think of it?"

Chesebro was swelling with poisonous fury. His dark eyes had hardened to pinpoints of baleful light. He clenched his fists and Rumble moved warily a step backward.

"You admit you're responsible for that picture in the paper?"

"Sure, Chesebro; it's a swell piece of publicity for Elsa."

Chesebro's arm flashed out, and Rumble ducked at the same time. The tall crown of the sombrero was caught by the flailing fist and the hat flew off, rolling along the deck until it came to rest at the rail.

"Of all the dirty, cowardly leeches—"

"Don't you call me that!" Rumble assumed a fighting pose. "There's heart appeal in that picture—"

Huntoon Rogers' tall figure jammed between the two belligerents; with a broad hand on the chest of each he shoved them vigorously apart.

"Don't forget yourselves!" he said sharply.

Chesebro dropped his hands and turned away, walking forward along the deck. Rumble glared after the fat, retreating back, looked up at Rogers who still stood as a barrier between him and his enemy, then strolled over to the rail, picked up his sombrero and set it back upon his oiled, curly head.

The danger of fistcuffs past, I gave my attention to the approaching rowboat which was now quite close. The torn halves of the rogarure section floated on the water within reach of the passenger, who, having observed that something unusual was astir relating to them, reached over the side and gathered the pieces in, and brought them up the ladder with him.

Rogers and I were there to greet him, and Dwight, too, whose curiosity at what had happened still was unsatisfied. The others had disappeared.

"I don't know what it's all about, Barry," Reed said, giving the wet pieces to me. "The Chief certainly swung from the ankles on that Rumble person. Where's Elsa?" he inquired eagerly. "She's on board, isn't she?"

"Oh, yes."

Rogers took the pieces of paper from me, carried them to a hatch cover and spread them methodically out for inspection. The section was a part of a Los Angeles Sunday newspaper that must have come down by train only the night before. Dwight was an interested spectator, and I crowded upon Rogers' other elbow. Reed Barton was of two minds, one to seek Elsa, the other to discover what was so interesting in the picture section.

Mastitis Can Be Cured By New Treatment

No. 1 Dairy Disease Should Be Eradicated

Mastitis, or inflammation of the udder of milking cows, can now be controlled and in most cases cured, says O. W. Schlam in "Bovine Mastitis," a late pamphlet published by the University of California. Two types of mastitis are recognized, says Mr. Schlam, who is an assistant professor of veterinarian science. The two are the acute, which is comparatively rare, and the chronic, which is so common among dairy herds of the world that it is considered the most serious bovine disease, resulting in lowered milk production. It is often a hidden disease, and may exist for a long time without being noticed. Symptoms are swelling of the udder, and visible particles in the first streams of milk, and eventually reduced flow.

The disease is caused by infection of the udder with a bacteria called streptococcus agalactiae. It does not affect any organ but the milk glands. The germs enter through the teat, and are transmitted from infected cows to healthy animals by the hands of a milker or the cups of a machine. To some extent, the disease is spread by calves that suck at several cows, and by muddy and unsanitary corrals and flies. It is estimated that about 85 per cent of all cows that have been once infected harbor the disease, and that it may become virulent at any time and cause garget (clotted milk).

The severity of the disease, says Mr. Schlam, depends upon such aggravating factors as incomplete milking, improper drying off, excessive vacuum in milking machines, and exposure to rain and cold.

Diagnosing mastitis is difficult for the amateur, unless symptoms are so severe as to be obvious, so Mr. Schlam advises having regular and frequent tests made of all the cows in a herd. Microscopic examination of milk samples is the easiest and cheapest way. Cows should then be grouped, he says, into (1) free of infection, (2) suspected, (3) positively infected. Group 1 cows should be milked first, group 2 next, and group 3 last.

Chronic mastitis is spread among a herd by the milker's hands or the cups of the milking machine and to a lesser extent by flies.

Up to a few years ago, mastitis was considered incurable, but sulfanilamide has been found effective in treatment, and three other drugs, neutral acriflavine, colloidal silver oxide, and tyrothricin have proved completely successful in ordinary cases. These drugs are injected into the infected parts. All but the most severe cases respond.

After infection has been removed, the udder will show a tendency to rebuild itself, and milk production may become normal. Treatment during dry periods is preferable in general.

Farm Notes

For safe storage of grain, the moisture content should not be more than 14 per cent, say experts.

Every farmer who possibly can is urged to cut a few cords of pulpwood or a few logs of lumber this fall during his spare time. War industries are calling for tremendous amounts of wood products, says R. W. Graeber, extension forester at N. Carolina State college.

Aralac, a new synthetic fiber, has some of the properties of wool. Another new clothing material is made from a combination of fibers from redwood tree bark and wool, and a soybean fiber now being used in making hats. A new cotton cloth, not yet on the market, is said to be as durable as woolen fabric.

Grasses and legumes make good silage when ensiled under suitable conditions, and when preservatives are added in adequate amounts.

Every victory garden should have at least a few flowers. The lift they give to the spirit justifies them.

At least 20 million pounds of honey have been added to this year's honey crop recently because the weather was sunny while sweet clover was in bloom in northern states.

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to thank you and the Citizens Club for remembering me while I was in camp. I also wish to thank you for the Tinley Park Times and all those that wrote to me as I sure felt good to hear all the news from around home. While I was in Texas.

It was a pretty camp but was real hot while I was there.

I feel pretty good now as I am taking it easy for a while till I am OK again, then will go back to work.

Thanking you again, as ever,
Your friend,

I heard so much about the new

I will have to wait awhile. But it sure must be beautiful I heard so much about it. Will have to close

I wish to thank you for the nice gift you sent me a few weeks ago.
I really appreciate it. I'm sorry I haven't had a chance to write before now. I have been transferred a couple of times and it takes a while to get things organized again.
I'm on a furlough now and am really enjoying it.
Again I want to thank you for

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to let you know I am well and to thank you for the cigarettes you sent. I received them a week or so ago. I had received a letter from you a couple of weeks before that asking if I need anything. Well the letter was appreciated as much as any gift ever could be. We fellows over here don't exactly look for gifts because letters bring us closer to home, thanks just the same. I hope you won't think me ungrateful. My wife, God Bless her, keeps me supplied with anything I happen to need. And letters are number one. So I have nothing to ask for. (Except a discharge or furlough and that has to come from Uncle Sam).

Thanks again for everything.

Sept. 16, 1943

Dear Friends:

I suppose you thought I had forgotten about the folks back at Tin-ley Park but I haven't, I was merely waiting for my transfer from boot camp to my advance Military training station before I wrote. Now that I have broke training I can write and send my present address which I will have for about 4 to 6 weeks.

I received two issues of the Tin-ley Park Times and a very nice letter from your correspondent secretary. It seems good to hear all the news from home. The kit I received before leaving also comes in handy.
Thanks a million.

Maybe some of you folks would like to know what type of training a Sea Bee gets so I'll tell you as much as I can be permitted. Our first four weeks were spent in Boot Camp. In boot camp the Navy endeavors to harden a man coming from civilian life and teach him military discipline and to take orders.
They also give you plenty of special duties, such as mess detail, K.P. in the Army. After four weeks of drilling and lecturing in boot you are ready for your advance training. I have just started my advance training but my superiors tell me it consists of two weeks military training and two weeks of technical training at the trade school. I guess I'm pretty lucky having experience around my Dad's equipment as it will fit into my service life very well.

The weather here is still pretty hot in the day time and cools off considerably at night. The food is good and the Officers are tops. So the only thing we don't like here is the native Virginia Civilians attitude toward sailors. They will not speak or associate with us, therefore we have adopted the following slogan, "Virginia is a good place to be from but home is the only place to BE."

I know the Sea Bees are a new outfit and probably all people are not familiar with us but our mates overseas are already making history.
They have already taken a slogan
the Marines and added some to it,
"The first to land and the last to leave". If any Marines get to hear about that slogan tell them not to hold it against me because their buddies let our mates overseas have it.
If you hear of any Tinley Marines coming home let me know so I can take my leave at a later date.

Well I don't know of much more to write at the present but there is one I would like to tell you folks at home. Pretty near every day we get a chance to talk to one of our mates that has been on the front and returned and this is the message they ask us to send along to you:

"Tell the folks at home not to believe any of those rumors or any of that scuttle but about buying Bonds being a good way to prolong the war. Bonds are a main source of giving the boys on the front the equipment guns and ammunition to beat the Axis."

Before I close let me thank you again for all the swell things you are doing for us in the service.

Yours very truly,
Marvin Bettenhausen, F-1c, 11th
Super Battalion, Co. "B" Platoon 5,

Several weeks ago I received a too, the paper has been reaching me in good time. The work you folks are

I received that lovely package of candy, and the boys and I really enjoyed it very much. If every boy away from home enjoyed their box of candy as much as we did, your efforts are certainly appreciated. I wish you could go along with all your packages you sent. You would find out how much happiness it brings. Things like that really help all of us much more than we could write or say.

Behind the scenes of shell production

In this modern war production plant 37 mm. steel cartridge cases are being turned out in vast quantities with the aid of efficient electrical operations.

Electric conveyors provide a steady flow of parts and a progression movement through the various steps of processing. The draws (stretching operations) are made in huge electrically operated presses. The annealing is done in an accurately controlled continuous electric furnace, conveyorized salt bath and conveyor type oven. The finish is applied by an automatic spray machine and is baked in an infra-red oven.

In this war plant, just as in thousands of others throughout Northern Illinois, Electric Power is the vital source of energy... the dynamic force that puts more production into every hour.

Electric Power Speeds War Production

The small, thick cups have been annealed in the controlled atmosphere furnace and are ready for the first draw (stretching process). They'll roll down to the presses at the rear.

Casings move past the spray guns, placed so that each casing is covered completely. Here one has been covered and others are entering the spray.

Because of its compactness, efficiency and ease of operation, the infra-red battery of lamps is used in baking the finish on shell casings. Casings have been removed from the foreground to show the calrods which heat the bottom of the shells.

Draws are made in these big electrically driven presses. Drawn shells are pushed up to the conveyor by a hydraulic ram, and the conveyor carries them to the wash and furnace.

Internal spraying is the function of this electrical machine. The girl puts the shell over the revolving tube and the paint sprays into it. She does two at a time.

Annual Chrysanthemum Show Opens, November 6th In Chicago; Runs to Nov. 28

War restrictions will not interfere this year with the holding of the Chicago Park District's 31st Annual Chrysanthemum Shows, opening Nov. 6th and run thru to the 28th at Garfield and Lincoln Park conservatories.

With thousands of service men from army, navy, coast guard and marines stationed in and near Chicago, with dozens of trainloads of members of the armed forces and their families passing thru the city daily, and with thousands of new war workers and their families taking up residence in Chicago and suburbs, it is felt that there is greater need for this beautiful display than in former years.

Wm. C. Blasings, chief horticulturist, Chicago Park District, recently announced that all preparations are assured for this great horticultural event, in which more than 700 varieties of chrysanthemums will be shown, including thousands of plants and nearly 500,000 buds and blossoms in every shade and color except blue.

The famous Garfield Park conservatory, the world's largest under one roof, will house one of the shows on Chicago's west side, while Lincoln Park conservatory on the north side has scheduled a companion show to take place at the same time. Hours will be from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m., daily, including Sundays and holidays.

Attendance is expected to exceed 400,000, according to conservative estimates.

The Low Down From Hickory Grove

Even the 7-years-itch don't last forever. Funny business there at our Capitol will get cleared up. Several Congressmen went home during the last four years and without a return coupon on their R. R. ticket.

If I was a Senator still down there on the payroll I would not daily around, about making a long and careful look into the first crystal ball I could find, if I had not already done so.

In our Land of the Free, we go in for bobbed hair and then in for letting it grow and pinning it up. We do things. We go odd places. We been tasting every concoction any Govt. Doctor could cook up. We have a bad taste in our mouth. But she looks like we might be headed for home again—back to the ways of our forefathers. Brothers and Sisters, home will look 'good.

Yours with the low down,
Jo Serra

COOK COUNTY DELINQUENT TAX LIST

OFFICE OF COUNTY TREASURER OF COOK COUNTY AND EX-OFFICIO COUNTY COLLECTOR OF COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS.

Advertisement and Notice of Collector of Cook County of Application for Sale of Delinquent Lands and Lots for General Taxes for the year 1942 and Notice of Sale Thereof and application for Judgment, fixing the correct amount of any tax paid under protest and for order for sale on such payments as provided by law.

Orland Township

October 28, 1943

NOTICE is hereby given that the said Collector of Cook County will apply to the County Court of Cook County, on the eighth day of November, A. D., 1943, for judgment against lands and lots herein-after described as being delinquent upon which taxes remain due and unpaid, or personal property taxes charged thereon as noted in this advertisement, remain due and unpaid, for said taxes, interest and costs, and for an order to sell said lands and lots for the satisfaction thereof according to law (excepting from said judgment and order of sale the cases which are included in this advertisement for sale only under former unexecuted judgments and orders of sale as may be noted in this advertisement.)

Notice is also given that an application will be made for judgment fixing the correct amount of any tax paid under protest.

Notice is further herein and hereby given that on the Second Monday next succeeding the Eighth Day of November, A. D. 1943, to-wit, the Twenty-second Day of November A. D. 1943, at the hour of 8 o'clock A. M. all said lands and lots hereinbefore described for sale of which an order shall be made, or have heretofore been made and not executed as noted, will be exposed to public sale at the County Building of Cook County, where the County Court is held in said County for the amount of taxes, interest and costs due there on respectively.

The following is the list of delinquent lands and lots in Orland Township upon which the taxes remain due and unpaid the name of the owners, where known, the total amount due thereon (excluding delinquent special assessments separately advertised) and the year or years for which the same is due.

(The total amount due in this application on each tract or parcel of land or lot is the sum of the amounts appearing due in this advertisement.)

EXPLANATORY NOTE—In this list in all places where no other notation is made the figures in the column "$" (meaning dollars) and the "cts" (meaning cents) represent the taxes due and unpaid for the year A. D. 1942. Where the letter "F" is placed to the left of the figures in this column it is intended for an abbreviation of the word "Forfeiture", and denotes that the amounts set down to the right of the same are the amounts due and unpaid on said land and lots for which said lands and lots have been previously forfeited to the State. When back taxes are extended, they are indicated by "B. T."

Payments of taxes, made after printers copies are sent to the publishers for listing and appear as delinquent in this advertisement will be satisfied in judgment records before sale.

Where no description of property (either land, lot block or portion thereof) appears in said list to the left of and opposite the figures in said column headed "$" (meaning dollars) and "cts" (meaning cents) said figures relate to the land, lot block or portion thereof last above described appearing to the left of and opposite "$" and "cts" column. 'Name' in the words 'name' where used in the list means name of the owner of said delinquent lands or lots and 'desc' in said words means description of said lands or lots.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNS HERMAN—In memory of my husband who passed away six years ago, Nov. 7, 1937.

Like a beautiful melody
Or the fragrance of a flower,
Like the memory of a book
That fills an idle hour.
Like soft glowing-moonlight
That stays till stars are gone,
But still your memory—
Lingers on and on!

When the Clock Is Running Out

You can look back to the pages through the ages when the sages thought in terms of endless time. When you reckoned by the second or the centuries that beckoned in a calendar rhyme. "What is time?" the sages asked you. But the sages never knew the killing, thrilling moment that is only known to few, to the teams in scrappy battle through the gridiron's reel and rout, where seconds tell the story of the glory of the bout, to the team that's trailing slightly—when the clock is running out. All time is now split seconds—as the wild cheer leaders shout, for the pass or run that follows—when the clock is running out. Oh, the reeling, dizzy feeling in the wheeling spin of doubt—can they make it—break or fake it—as the clock is running out?

The Condition Pitcher

Spud Chandler, the Yankees star pitcher, is strong on the side of condition or physical fitness.

Part of this is due to Chandler's psychology and part to his football training where one had to keep in shape with the schedule Georgia faced in those years—often 10 hard games.

Spud is a terrific worker. A few years back this conditioning process boomed when he started to get ready weeks ahead of time by working out his legs over a Georgia track. He broke an ankle, which left him out of action most of the year.

This concentration on condition has been largely responsible for Chandler's best year at the age of 34. Few pitchers wait that long to have their best season—which also was one of the best pitching seasons in over 20 years.

One Great Pitch

A bunch of us were arguing, as usual, over the greatest single pitch any World series ever saw.

My vote went to Christy Mathewson in the series of 1912—Giants against the Red Sox.

This was the eighth game of the closest series yet played.

In the last of the tenth inning the Giants were leading by a run with Boston at bat. There were two on base with one out and Tris Speaker up. Mathewson piled two fast balls through and then with the same pitching motion lobbed one over. Speaker, caught off balance, lifted a high pop foul that dropped safely in the coaching box near first base.

It should have been an easy out but the call came for Chief Myers to handle it—and the slow Chief couldn't quite make it. That pitch should have made two out and quite possibly have won the series for the Giants. It took headwork and courage to feed Speaker that slow one under the circumstances.

But Mathewson always had just about everything a pitcher needs to be tops.

Back in 1905, a mere matter of 38 years ago, your correspondent saw Christy shut out the Athletics three times in compact order in the finest pitching exhibition he has ever seen. Christy Mathewson still holds first place in many a fan's memory book.

The Left-Handed Crop

Good left-handers are hard to locate. Any ball club that has one top southpaw is lucky. The Cardinals, in a way, were lucky to have four hanging around this season—Lanier, White, Brecheen and Brazle—not to overlook Pollet who was called into the service.

This is the best left-handed crop any team has ever known when you add up both quantity and quality.

Any team whose power depends on good left-handed hitters is up against a heavy handicap facing left-handed pitchers.

In the old days the Babe had most of his trouble facing southpaws with the curve breaking away from his swinging bat.

Which reminds us that a good part of Connie Mack's earlier success was due to the great left-handers he gathered in along the trail—Rube Waddell, Eddie Plank, Herb Pennock and Bob Grove—to mention four of the best in baseball history.

About 1944

What about baseball through 1944? No one can say the outlook is any more promising than it was for 1943 a year ago. The father's draft will undoubtedly make a big difference. So will the progress of the war.

After looking at what happened through 1943 there is little use in making too many pessimistic guesses.

Judging from all reports received to date, baseball played its part for the service men, both in camps at home and those abroad.

IN A recent piece dealing with Frankie Sinkwich, top college football player of 1942 who signed recently with the Detroit Lions, we were guilty of underestimating the educational and cultural aspects of the National Football league.

We said that "there have been plenty of big names in college ranks who failed in their professional careers. In fact, most of the top professional teams consist of individuals who never bothered going to college."

We were wrong. Just how wrong is proved by a gently remonstrative letter from George Strickler, able director of public relations for the league. His correction:

"Since Dick Schweidler left the Bears several seasons ago there has not been a single player in our league who has not had three years of college football experience. This fall a number of promising youngsters, whose experience had been limited to high school football, went to the various camps and as far as I know now—pending a final check on the approved rosters—there is only one left."

"All other players now active in the league have been to college. Last year, 91 per cent of our players had college degrees."

We apologize to the erudite players of the National league. However, we were never guilty of underestimating their football playing abilities.

Football's Future

Further word comes from Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Western conference, who is exceedingly optimistic concerning the future—immediate and distant—of college football.

College football, according to Major Griffith, has been kicked around since Pearl Harbor by "peacetime enemies and other self-appointed pallbearers," but has survived its various acid tests with flying colors. He feels that the 1943 season is destined to be one of the most successful.

According to Major Griffith, football's greatest victory since the United States entered the war has been over influences, both within and without colleges, that would banish the game from the American scene even in peacetimes.

"Many of the old peacetime arguments against football have been revived since Pearl Harbor," Major Griffith recalls. "One of the fallacious arguments of the opposition was that if a handful of boys were not allowed to play in intercollegiate competition—such as football, basketball, track and baseball—more students would get a chance to participate in widespread intramural activities."

The Old Argument

"Since Pearl Harbor this argument has popped up to show that if football, which admittedly conditions varsity team members, were abandoned on an intercollegiate scale, more of the men students awaiting call by the armed forces would benefit physically from de-emphasized intramural sports."

"The argument is no better in wartime than it was before the war. Such schools as Michigan, Minnesota, Indiana, Purdue and others which are carrying on their intercollegiate schedules have intramural programs just as comprehensive—if not more so—than schools which have abandoned intercollegiate programs."

The "give-the-game-back-to-the-students" cry is little more than sound and fury. It is recalled that at Harvard university, where 1943 intercollegiate football was dropped, students organized their own team and challenged Yale.

The thought wasn't original with Major Griffith, but he summarized it excellently when he noted that "football and other intercollegiate sports were started originally by students. College administrations later assumed supervision over the games, to exercise a much-needed control."

The point is a good one. Intercollegiate athletics were not a faculty affair in the beginning. College officials began to supervise football when it was in the doldrums—when vicious mass plays were accounting for far too many casualties.

RUSSIA'S FUTURE FORM OF GOVERNMENT

IN OUR PRIDE we like to think of America as the dominant power of the world. We may be that today, but what of the comparatively near future?

The dominant powers of the tomorrow may very easily be Russia and China. We grew to greatness because we had the resources with which to work, with a form of government and an economic system that created a will to work. Today Russia has the resources, she has the man power and given the will to work, she can outdistance us within the next half century.

The Russian government today is not communistic. It is purely a dictatorship and dictatorships last only so long as the dictator lasts. The dictatorship in Russia is providing education for Russian youth. The next generation will be more capable of individual and mass thinking than has any generation of the past. The dictatorship of Joseph Stalin has made many things possible and these have meant advancement. Today Russia is at the threshold of, for her, a new world. She has oils, minerals, timber, an abundance of fertile soil and man power. All she lacks is that economic system out of which is created the will to achieve.

Joseph Stalin will pass and with him, in all probability, will pass the dictatorship, to be followed by a form of government that will provide the needed economic system. Should that prove true, the Russian people and the people of the world will thank Joseph Stalin for his accomplishments. It is my belief that communism was but a passing phase in the life of the nation. It was a booby man that lives today more in the minds of zealots in other countries than in Russia.

JAPANESE POPULATION IN WESTERN STATES

SOME SIX YEARS AGO, when in Honolulu, I looked for material for a newspaper article on the subject of the Japanese population of the Hawaiian islands. I found many, a big majority, who pronounced them good citizens. They supported such statements with what seemed to be good evidence. Others, including intelligence officers of both the army and navy, were emphatic in their denunciation of the Japs and insisted they were an ever-present source of danger to the islands and to the nation.

My interest in the subject had been aroused by people I had talked to in California. The Californians had insisted the Japs up and down the coast were a menace to the safety of the nation and could not be trusted. The people of the coast states had, for years, attempted to impress upon congress and people of states farther east that the Japs were a dangerous element, many of them paid spies of the Tokyo government, and not to be trusted.

After weighing the evidence gathered at Honolulu, I decided the Japs were good citizens, loyal to the United States, and wrote my story from that viewpoint.

Events have demonstrated how entirely wrong I was in my estimate of the Jap character. The Japs were all the intelligence officers of the army and navy said they were. They were all the people of the Pacific coast states said they were. Today, as a resident of a Pacific coast state, I trust they may never again be permitted residence in my town and my state. If the people of the Pacific coast have the say so, they never will.

HOW INFLATION CAN AFFECT US

A LETTER from an old newspaper editor friend tells me of his retirement after 52 years of newspapering. In his letter he says: "I have enough to see me through if I do not live too long." But I wonder if he considers all the possibilities. We may have money. Judged from our past expenditures, it may be enough to last a definite length of time. But are past experiences a criterion for the future? The ugly head of inflation is just beyond the horizon. The dollars of today will depreciate to the values of tomorrow. He who must live on a fixed income may find it will not provide the price of tomorrow's bread. It is an uncertain age and the most helpless individual is he who has saved that he may have a competence for his declining years based on the conditions of the yesteryears. Inflation is no respecter of individuals. We do not know, we can only hope.

AS A SECOND THOUGHT, Vice President Wallace assures us that only from two to eight per cent of all corporations are bad and that making legitimate profits is a system that must be preserved in America. Wonder what prompted that second thought?

HERBERT HOOVER'S PROPOSAL that we delay writing the final peace terms until we get over being mad would seem to be practical horse sense.

The Private Papers Of a Cub Reporter

The Cafe Society Uptown proprietor, who is so proud of the murals there, said to Mike Romanoff: "Prince, who did the decoration of your restaurant on the coast?" "Decoration?" replied Mike. "I am the decoration!"

"Yes, I know that," was the retort delightful, "but who did the interior that pales into insignificance when you are not around to give it a glow?"

Betty Smith, whose first novel, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," is a best seller, will soon be a grandmaw, and she's practically a girl herself. Last Laff Dep't: A West Coast biggie withdrew his 25 per cent interest in "Laugh Time," the hit, at the last moment. The show is making nothing but money.

When Mounbatten was in Washington recently they say he had a session with Admiral King, who graciously said: "If there is anything you want, you may have it. Just name it." The Admiral, of course, was speaking of ships, etc. Mounbatten replied: "There's just one request. I hope you will grant me a favor." "What is it?" asked Admiral King. "I would like," said His Lordship, "a top button from your tunic." King seemed puzzled. Mounbatten continued: "You see, I have General Arnold's wings and General Marshall's top button, and I am certain that with yours we will have good luck. Nothing, sir, can then happen to us."

"Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 3: Walter Winchell, New York City: Thought probably the politicians in Washington who are endeavoring to speak for the young men of America would be interested in the following resolution: Whereas: We the Utah State Junior Chamber of Commerce represent a cross section of the young married men of draft age in Utah. And Whereas we fully realize our responsibilities to our country in this time of war.

"And Whereas: Acts and statements made by misinformed persons have created the false impression that draft age fathers wish special consideration from the selective service system on a dependency basis notwithstanding military requirements. Be it resolved: By the Utah State Junior Chamber of Commerce, in State Board meeting assembled this third day of October, 1943, that we urge the defeat of all legislation which attempts to defer heads of families on the basis of dependency only and reaffirm the fact that we have been and are ready and willing to answer the call to arms if and when we are summoned.—Pres., Provo Jr. C. of C., Provo, Utah."

Now that children no longer automatically become American citizens when their parents are naturalized, the 11-year-old daughter of Gerhart Seger, former member of the Reichstag, was up before the immigration and naturalization examiner. The child, who has lived most of her 11 years in the U. S., was asked the usual questions: "Have you ever been a member of the German-American Bund?" "Do you favor anarchy?" et cetera.

The child looked a little confused for a moment and then, smiling, said: "Oh, a quiz program!" Whereupon the examiner stamped her papers and replied: "You don't want to become an American—you are one!"

The Eyebrow Raiser of the Week: Common Sense magazine's editor appeals for subscriptions from Americans to "repair any damage" we may do to Tokyo and Berlin. Editor A. M. Bingham says a group of vigorous thinkers and famous writers will contribute articles to that end. They include: Pearl Buck, Stuart Chase, Thomas Mann, Quincy Howe, Lin Yu-tang and John Haynes Holmes. "Tokyo may soon be destroyed," says Mr. Bingham. "The world's third largest city will be pocked with areas of destruction like stone and steel-built London and Berlin. It will be literally gutted and 7,000,000 human beings will be homeless. To rebuild Tokyo, however, and Berlin and Essen . . . will require real statesmanship and an application of genuine democracy. Are you ready to help do it, or shall we crucify democracy on the cross of hate?"

We just want to know one thing before we send in our check. What kind of monument will mark the spot in Tokyo where our fliers were beheaded?

Next to the war, the problems of the nation's "Harlems" are uppermost in the President's mind. And some of the Washington big guns, who consider it a small problem, will soon find it one of their own largest headaches. . . . England will accept the Beveridge Plan after the war. . . . One for Ripley: While they are commonplace in Good Housekeeping, Ladies' Home Journal and the Savepost, etc., True Confessions mag does not allow articles about suicides or divorces between its covers.

IF YOUR DEALER IS OCCASIONALLY OUT OF CAMELS

—it's because hundreds of millions of Camel cigarettes are now being sent to men in the service. In addition to the government's own purchases for our fighting men, veterans' organizations, fraternal orders, clubs, friends and relatives everywhere are sending them Camels. Yes, Camels! After all, Camels are the favorite cigarette with men in all the services—Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard.*

First in the Service
—AND THE SERVICE COMES FIRST!

WHILE we have pushed Camel's production to new peaks to meet this overwhelming demand from Uncle Sam's fighting men and from the folks at home, yet if your dealer does not always have Camels for you, he asks you to be patient while he is temporarily out of them, believing you will agree that the men in the service should come first.

* Based on actual sales records, the favorite cigarette with men in the Army, the Navy, the Coast Guard, and the Marines is Camel.

Some chopped olives and sweet or sour pickles added to cole slaw gives an interesting new flavor.

Three tablespoons of light molasses substituted for three tablespoons of the liquid used in making bread pudding will add much to the flavor of the pudding.

Spaghetti, macaroni, noodles, rice, are high in carbohydrates and should be counted with the cereals and breads, not as vegetables, when planning and balancing your menus.

To sprinkle clothes for ironing, use a clean whisk broom or a bottle with a perforated top.

When your shoes are wet, crumple newspaper and pack in the shoes. This will absorb the moisture and also help keep the shoes in shape. Do not place too near the fire.
